This course will help you assess your readiness to take the CPHQ certification examination. Although there are no minimum education or experience criteria, the Healthcare Quality Certification Board recommends that each candidate take the time to assess and judge his/her own readiness to apply to take the CPHQ examination, particularly those individuals who haven't worked in the healthcare quality field for two years. The examination is designed to test the knowledge, skills, and abilities of effective quality management professionals who have been performing a majority of the tasks on the examination outline for two years. The examination does not test at the entry level and is not appropriate for entry level candidates

The class will be held in the building marked T 7 below. Gates are closed on weekends, so you will need to enter from Indian School Road. Drive north to building 7 (marked T 7 on the lower right hand corner of the map) which is near 7th street. There is parking in front of building 7 (T 7).
